

Never Have I Ever

The easy way of playing this game is the point value version. Decide on the order of players over Zoom. One player begins the game by saying 'Never Have I Ever...' and then mentions something they have never done. Each player will start off the game with ten points. If a player has done something that the original player has said they have never done, that person then loses a point.

For example, the first player says "Never have I ever taken a ride on a helicopter". Every player that has taken a ride on a helicopter must then lose a point.

If there happens to be only one player that has done a specific action, they are required to cough up the details on how it went down. Feel free to use your imagination when coming up with these never have I ever questions.

You can tally up the points however you wish. It's always a good idea to have a pen and paper handy, though, so you don't have any cheaters. The game ends when there is only one person left with points.
